

LORI KEMPTON

COMMUNICATE, ENCOURAGE, INSPIRE

are the three words that come to mind when Lori considers the calling God has on her life. A gifted storyteller, Lori genuinely shares her life struggles and circumstances, while passionately and often humorously, teaching God's truths. Lori's ministry "Just Trying to Be a Blessing," gets its name from her favorite saying when she is typically in trouble. It is a great illustration of her sense of humor.

She is an Indiana Wesleyan University graduate with a Bachelor of Science degree in management. Her entrepreneurial spirit has led her to own her own small business, help start a crisis pregnancy center, plant a church, and write a best-selling book. She speaks regularly for Stonecroft Ministries throughout Ohio and Indiana. She also speaks for other organizations for special events, women's retreats, luncheons and conferences. Don't see a topic below that fits your needs? She can personalize something just for you.

She and her husband, Jim, have four grown children—two of his and two of hers—three of whom are married increasing their "kid count" to seven. They also enjoy their seven grandchildren—God's true blessings. Lori's interests are her current real estate career, photography, reading, traveling, writing, pro-life ministries and of course, speaking.
